

SUE RENKIN BIO

Sue is an experienced business leader and company director who possesses in-depth understanding and strengths in the areas of executive coaching, corporate governance, strategic planning, business growth, fiscal management and risk management. Sue has been responsible for leading teams to turn a number of businesses from loss making enterprises to profitable entities in her roles as Chief Executive. Sue now enjoys a portfolio career including non-executive directorships and executive coaching and currently holds several roles as Chair of the Board

In 2015, Sue was appointed to the Global Leadership Board of the International Women's Forum, an organization that develops future female leaders around the Globe. She is the only Australian representative on this board. She works closely with Head Office based in Washington and contributes to facilitating workshops for future leaders and assists with identifying potential candidates for the IWF Fellows Program.

Sue is an extraordinarily capable business networker and works comfortably with all levels of Business, Government and Academic Institutions garnering respect from all with whom she works. She has also worked extensively in mentoring and coaching roles within emergency services, corporate sector, not-for-profit and university sector and has a broad understanding of the challenges within each of these areas. Sue is often called upon to assist CEOs achieve growth in their own personal and professional development.

Sue has been recognized over the years for her leadership and has been a finalist in the Women Chiefs of Enterprise International Business Leaders Award, and the recipient of the Australian Business Woman of the Year for private companies. In 2012 Monash University awarded Sue the Distinguished Alumni Service Award.

In her spare time Sue enjoys beach walks, sporting activities, family time, cooking, entertaining and spending valuable time with her large family.